From the Gazette we learn that efforts are being made to find a suitable location for a lighthouse at the entrance of Honolulu harbor, and from the account given, it would appear as if the foundation is a sort of quicksand. The amount voted by the Legislature ($3,500) is altogether too small to construct such a lighthouse as is needed by the trade of the port, and it was so stated by us at the time the item was under discussion. It is hardly sufficient to prepare a proper foundation, to say nothing of the superstructure, which should be of sufficient strength to resist the terrific kona storms which occasionally aweep over the group. The British subjects wrested from King Theodore cost nearly a million sterling apiece. They are worth it, every pound. That is the one great glory of England, that her flag waves over each of her subjects, the meanest as well as the greatest, on whatever land or sea he may travel-or if it do not and he comes wrongfully to harm she will make it wave there if men and money can carry it so far. The lesson thus taught will protect her subjects from insult for half a century to come in whatever. portion of the world they may be placed. Money thus expended in a national cause is not los-Whatever faults England may have, it cannot be said of her that she fails to give ample protection to ber people abroad. A Noble Earl.-The Earl of Shaftsbury, whose name is distinguished and honored among all philanthropists as well as christians, has recently come under the severe censure of those who represent the High Church in England. He has violated their ideas of ecclesiastical propriety, and refused to confine his influence for good within the limits they assign. He insists that he has a right to recognize and work with Christians wherever they may be found. He even appeared on the platform of Exeter Hall, in company with Mr Spurgeon, the noted Baptist preacher. Afterwards he presided over certain meetings, which those who assume to be his guides to do duty on such points, do not approve, and for all these things he is rebuked. The style of his reply is such as we might expect from so noble a man, and the spirit he manifests might be possessed by many others with profit. After declaring himself to be a sincere member of the Church of England, and his purpose to maintain the vigor of that Church, he adds: "Although I do not concur in all Mr. Spurgeon's sentiments, nor always approve the language in which they are conveyed. I regard him as a man of great ability, of great earnestness, and doing a great work. And in these days of trouble, rebuke, and blasphemy, I will, if requested, give the right hand of fellowship to him and every other, who will preach Christ to the masses of the people." There is the ring of christian fidelity in these words, and neither bigotry nor.

THE DELCTIONS OF DRINK .- The most prevalent of all delusions in self-delusion. No one humbugs us so thoroughly as we humbug ourselves. And in no particular are we more self-deceptive than in the habits that are born of our appetites. We are continually making excuses for them, instead of openly avowing and justifying our inclinations. Thus they become forbidden fruit, and thus the danger of illicit indulgence is heightened. So much of artificial stimulus enters into our lives-moral, mental, and physical, that periods of reaction and depression are inevitable, practically unavoidable. Therefore recourse is had to the inspiriting devices alluded to the following, from the London Lancet:

The growing tendency of those whose lives are gentle, and whose minds are educated, to include in alchoholic stimulation, is a fact which the profes sion would do well to recognize and protest against. The vice is not the vice of our grandfathers; the bottle or two of port which often laid them under the dinner table, and always sent them reeling into the drawing room. The sin of our day is less obtrusive and even more disastrons. It takes the form of an occasional glass at odd times during the HUDSON BAY CO.'S RED SALMON! day, an extra dose at lunch, a glass of sherry or two more or less frequently in the course of the afternoon, another from the table when the cloth is taid for dinner. Not uncommonly a flask of sherry accompanies the blue book in the carriage. And it is worth nothing that this kind of tippling is not done in secret. So far, indeed, from this, it is rather a matter of boasting on the part of those who indulge in it. and they press others, often warmly, to follow their example. Sometimes, it is true, a mild kind of excuse is offered. The dose is taken "just t keep one up, you know," or as a "whet before din-ner." Just as often, when soda or seltzer water ner." Just as often, when soda or seltzer water suggests itself as a refreshment, the question arises | Salmon in barrels, whether its accompaniment shall be brandy, sherry, or liquor. The idea of taking it alone is not entertained. It is described as weakening, too cold for the stomach, and so on. Not so frequently, it is to be hoped, but still often enough to be of serious moment, these odd glasses of sherty, brandy and soda, dry curacoa, &c., are taken in the morning between breakfast and lunch, sometimes even before breakfast. In the course of time the results of these indulgences do not fail to present themselves in the nausea and retching which accompany the morning toilet, the busky forenoon voice, the want of appetite for breakfast, the vague dyspeptic symptoms which lurk about during the day. remotely it is for a shattered nervous system that the patient or person-seeks relief from the physician. Society is on its knees just now confessing, always in a polite and respectable way, its sins of omission or commission in regard of dress-luxury, paint, and demimonde. It behooves the medical profession to see that the vice described is included in the list." THE PLOT AGAINST THE QUEEN OF SPAIN.-The latest accounts from Madrid do little more than confirm in great part what has been already stated. The Generals arrested were, of course, at once E. Kip Skins, Cahfernia Soie, Harness, Bridle and Saddle sent away from the capital, and some of them har- Leat nary Islands. Marshal Serrano, Duke de la Torre, and General Dominguez, his cousin, are to have their residence in Orotava, one of the towns of the largest of the Canaries; General Dulce, who has still to wait for his Marshal's baton, in, I believe, Laguna; and General Serrano, a relative of the Marshal, in Palmas, all towns of the same island General Zabala is sent to Lugo, in Gallicia; General Cordova to Soria, in old Castile. Brigadier General Leterre takes up his quarters in the same province, and Gens. Echague and Caballeres de Roda are shipped off to the Balcarie Islands. Ectague, it appears, was arrested in San Sebastian, of which town he is a native. Most, if not all those persons whose names are mentioned, belonged to the party known as the "Union Liberale," the head of which was the late Marshal O'Donnell, Duke of Tetoan. I have reason to believe that O'Donnell would have seen with pleasure the Duchess of Montpensier in the Queen's place, either as Regent during the minority of the Prince of the Asturias, or as constitutional Queen of Spain; and it is not too much to infer from the request made to the Duke of Montpensier to absent himself from Spain. that the object of those who cherish the O'Donnel! traditions was the same. Several leading men of the old Progresista party are said to have come to an understanding with the Liberal Union, some of whom, indeed, were, in other times, of the same political party. We are told, too, of an interview between General Dulce and the former Carlist chief, Cabrera. Such a thing is certainly not impossible; but I hesitate to believe it. Cabrera's eeds in the provinces, where he commanded for Don Carlos during the civil war, are not yet forgotten, and they were a kind not likely to gain strength to the cause which the Liberal Union has proclaimed. Indeed, Cabrera's name would add othing to any except unmitigated Carlism: and I doubt that there is a spot in which this flourishes. Moreover, Cabrera has since become habituated to civilized life, and in his circumstances would hardly care to resume a career which he quifted eight and twenty years ago. The paper that mention the interview between Dulce and Cabrera do not say where it occurred. I have already mentioned that the first intimation of the plot, which was to take effect toward the middle of the present month. came from the French Government, who were informed by their agents on the frontier and elsewhere of what was going on. No doubt this Government acted like a good neighbor, but its zeal any person inclosing him the modest sum of six was a good deal quickened by the fact of a Prince pence. Receiving several thousand letters inclos- of the Orleans family being looked up to by those ing six pences, he sent to each of his correspondents | who were at the head of it-I do not say with his consent-as the future sovereign of Spain. Notwithstanding the numerous arrests that have been made, and the banishment, of course without judg-ment or trial of any kind, I much doubt whether the Government has the clue of the conspiracy in its hands. It has more ramifications in the army than it is probably aware of; and it has extended among the more influential of the middle class of civilians. There is, however, one observation to be made respecting certain of the military leaders. Whatever may be said of Queen Isabella, personally or politically, it is certain that some of the men who are prescribed as planning her overthrow trying to the eyes. Ophthalmy-which killed half are precisely those who have been loaded with years at the business, and caused a German print- est military rank, honors, titles of nobility-all ing office to be the funniest assemblage of pale faces, have, up to almost the very last moment, been small forms, and big green goggles ever seen-will bestowed upon them with a profesion which no other country affords an example of. In Spain, conspiracy and conspirator have long lost the odious significance with elsewhere attaches to them. Those Marshals, and Generals, and Grandees, and Grand Crosses, no doubt believe they are acting for the good of their country in what they prepose, but they should begin by resigning into the hands that gave them so recently what were long the objects of their ambition, and if there be any persons who have a right to conspire against the Queen, they are not the Dukes, and Marquises, and Marshals, and Golden Fleeces of recent creation.
